About the company

Budget Thuis (Home)

Budget Thuis (Home) has a slogan: “Everything Under One Roof.” It is the underlying vision for their range of services, their customers, and what they stand for as a company. All of their products and services provide essential needs for families , households, and individuals. That’s why they also offer electricity, gas and Internet services, as well as TVs and mobile phones.

They are the first provider in The Netherlands to offer this full combination of household products and services that provides incredible convenience and a financial advantage for their customers. At their headquarters in Amsterdam, more than 450 employees are committed to providing customers with the highest quality of service.

Budget Thuis has grown significantly in recent years and now has more than one million satisfied customers. And hey score among the top four energy providers in The Netherlands.

Budget Thuis aims to be reliable and that’s what they want to reflect in their mobile app. For the ongoing growth of the company – in addition to new services and products – the website, their ‘MyBudget’ environment, and the mobile app are the most important channels to focus on.

The new Senior Mobile Developer will take the lead in translating their technical strategy into the future vision, developments, frameworks, and design choices for the mobile app. ▶

Senior Mobile Developer

The Senior Mobile Developer will develop new features, fix bugs, and perform necessary maintenance. They will also have the seniority, leadership, and vision to further guide app developments in the right direction. With their strong communication skills, the Developer will play a pivotal role between business and technology, as well as between front-end and back-end teams.

At Budget Thuis, creativity and technical expertise are highly valued, as are proactivity and entrepreneurship. To succeed, the Senior Mobile Developer will need a strong personality and vision, and share their thoughts to align with the company's strategic vision.

The Senior Mobile Developer will join the new in-house App Development team, which consists of two Android and two iOS Developers. They will also work closely with a diverse team of designers, product managers, and testers to ensure effective communication and collaboration in the further app development. ▶

This is an excellent opportunity for a Developer with extensive knowledge and experience in mobile development, and a vision for future developments of the iOS or Android platforms. At Budget Thuis, its people are expected to deliver on their creativity and technical skills, and play a crucial role in a growing success story. ■
